This story might have had a different ending had Mr. Keely been refused permission to try his lariat. It was due to a most untoward circumstance connected with the lassoing of grizzlies, with which Mr. Keely was unallies with which Mr. Keely was unfamiliar, that the tals ends as it does. In order to facilitate his use of the lariat Mr. Keely wrs given the sopmost perch in the somewhat fragile tree, and to better secare his prey when caught he had made the "home end" of the rope securely fast about its trunk. The accompanying illustration tells the rest.
